In Monday's edition, Metro incorrectly reported that SEPTA's Regional Rail trains would run on a weekend schedule on Thursday ahead of the pope's visit. Regional Rail will run on a weekend schedule on Friday and on a special papal visit schedule this weekend.

Many share in mural project for Pope Francis

The art of faith. As the World Meeting began, pilgrims participated in creating a mural.

Pilgrims arriving in Philadelphia had the opportunity Tuesday to take a brush and create a lasting tribute to Pope Francis' visit to the city.

"I feel happy because at least I can do something for the meeting, besides just coming here. God sees," said Teendwa Mahunnah, 37, an architect from Tanzania visiting for the World Meeting, as he painted at a table in the Pennsylvania Convention Center.

"It's a great joy to paint this," said Jorge Stemphelet, 54, of Uruguay, via translator. He said the mural, which will go up on the wall of Saint Malachy School at 11th and Thompson streets, should bring joy to locals.

"It's going to give them more strength, especially because it's for the pope," he said.

CHARLES MOSTOLLER / SAM NEWHOUSE / PROVIDED

Organizers also are introducing the mural as a contender to break the Guinness World Record for most contributions to a painting by numbers — which is currently 2,263.

"We already have 2,500," said artist Cesar Viveros, 46, who came to Philly from Mexico 18 years ago, and designed the mural, titled "The Sacred Now: Faith and Family in the 21st Century."

"It's surreal," Viveros said of the opportunity to work on a mural in honor of Pope Francis. "It's like a dream."

The mural is meant to depict the relationships that exist not just within families, but among all people, he said. Pope Francis is in it, but he occupies a relatively small portion of the design.

"I wanted to depict him small because he's humble. If he sees it, he will get it right away," Viveros said. "Whoever follows the pope understands that he's a different one than anybody else before him. They call him the pope of the people. I believe he really truly represents the message that Jesus gave when he was on Earth."

The public has been invited to 10 paint days to participate in creating the mural, which began over the summer and is expected to be completed by November.

Jane Golden, head of the Mural Arts Program, said no other Philly mural has been created in this manner before.

"When this event is over, this mural will serve as a lasting reminder of the pope's time here," she said. "People can say, 'I helped create that.' Twenty years from now, that mural will be living on."

By the numbers

- 4,239 square feet in the mural
- 330 gallons of paint
- 565 shades of color hand-mixed by the artist
- 1,606,688 brushstrokes

Joy as World Meeting begins

The World Meeting of Families officially opened Tuesday with celebrations and performances inside the Pennsylvania Convention Center, welcoming pilgrims and guests from around the world.

When prayers fail, insurance firms step in

Nuts and bolts. Insuring the visit of Pope Francis is a complex and expensive task.

When insurance comes in handy

In 1994, New York City was preparing for a visit from an aging John Paul II. The church spent millions preparing for the pope's visit, but there was a lingering concern: What if he wasn't healthy enough to come?

- Those fears turned into a reality. John Paul II had a broken hip and his doctors nixed the trip.
- Insurance companies that underwrote the cancellation policy ended up paying out $13 million.

Man plans, god laughs, as the old saying goes. But what does the Catholic Church do to protect itself if its prayers for a safe papal visit go unanswered?

It buys insurance.

"In my business, it's called seat-of-the-pants underwriting," said LeConte Moore, a managing director of DeWitt Stern, which brokered the insurance contract for Pope Francis' visit to Philadelphia.

Moore has brokered insurance deals for four presidential inaugurations. He's done major rock concerts and even provided coverage for organizers of pay-per-view events in case cable goes down.

Unlike a rock concert held in a stadium, there aren't any hard boundaries to Pope Francis' visit, and nobody really knows how many people are coming. And unlike life insurance, where insurers have a good idea of how long people will live based on years of history, there isn't a lot of data for occasions like a papal visit, which might require an insurance policy worth more than $30 million.

Quoted

"There are definite blind spots. You only get one chance to get this right."
Moore

That means companies are taking a big risk in deciding what to charge.

"There's no guidebook based on events in the past," Moore said. "Very few companies like to write special-event insurance."

Moore said that W.R. Berkley is the lead insurer on the visit — the same company that insures the Super Bowl.

The insurance covers routine things such as slip and falls and rare events such as a stage collapse. It evens insures damage to the Gettysburg Lectern — the podium used by Abraham Lincoln when he gave the Gettysburg Address, which will be used by the pontiff on Independence Mall.

Terrorism in particular is a hard risk to gauge. The FBI and Secret Service may be the world's experts on event security, but they don't exactly give insurance companies a window into their operations to help the archdiocese keep its costs low.

Insurers also charge based on the type of guest. In a classical music hall, they might charge one penny for every guest. At a rowdy rock concert, it could be 25 cents each.

Wide variety of pope souvenirs on sale

A smorgasbord of Pope Francis memorabilia peddled by shops around Philadelphia run from solar-activated pope dolls and soap bars with the pontiff's face printed onto them to papal beer with Francis coasters to boot.

A woman poses with a Pope Francis cutout souvenir. CHARLES MOSTOLLER

Open House, a gift boutique near the convention center, has sold hundreds of plushy pope dolls and Pope Francis figurines that wave when sunlight hits their hidden solar panels.

Nearby, Rob Evangelista sold handmade soap bars with Francis' face printed onto them at his family's bath product shop, Duross and Langel. Alongside are Catholic-inspired soaps with images of the Virgin Mary and the Holy Family, but the ivory-colored pope soaps are tops.

Potito's cafe sells cupcakes with the pope's face, while other shops have pope popsicles, pretzels and chocolate bars. REUTERS

Eye on roads as region gears for papal visit

Workers set up equipment for the papal visit on the Ben Franklin Parkway. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER

Gridlock? Road administrators wonder if lackluster transit sales mean people are planning to drive into Philly to see the pope.

Are a lot of people planning on driving to see the pope?

That's a question that's on the mind of some organizers as they try to reconcile the lackluster sales of hotel rooms, train and plane tickets with the enormous estimates of attendance at Pope Francis' Mass on the Ben Franklin Parkway Sunday.

And if the answer is yes, it could mean massive traffic headaches throughout the region — and not just near Philadelphia.

When Pope Francis takes the stage on the Ben Franklin Parkway on Sunday afternoon, he could be speaking to a crowd or more than one million — some estimates have been double that.

The New Jersey Department of Transportation has estimated that half of those going to see Pope Francis will use cars to get at least part of the way there.

Nobody, however, is sure how many people will actually come to hear Francis.

NJDOT spokesman Steve Schapiro said the department will be watching crowds in Washington, D.C., and New York closely.

"The numbers have been all over the place," Schapiro said. "The way we operate — we plan for a worst-case scenario. It's really difficult to know until we see how things transpire."

Schapiro said when an overturned dump truck forced the closure of the New Jersey Turnpike, it had a ripple effect throughout the state. With the Ben Franklin Bridge, along with portions of I-676 in Camden shut down on the New Jersey side, officials are bracing for a similar effect.

Authorities in both New Jersey and Pennsylvania are prepared to reroute traffic to clear roads.

Clinton says she opposes Keystone XL pipeline

Pipeline. Three phases of the project are in operation, and the fourth is awaiting U.S. government approval.

Democratic U.S. presidential candidate Hillary Clinton said on Tuesday that she opposes the Keystone XL pipeline.

"I have a responsibility to you and other voters," Clinton, a former secretary of state, said at a town hall event in Iowa.

"I think it is imperative that we look at the Keystone pipeline as what I believe is the distraction from the important work we have to do to combat climate change.

"Therefore, I oppose it," she said.

Clinton said last Thursday that the Obama administration's decision on whether to approve the Keystone XL pipeline oil pipeline was overdue and she "can't wait too much longer" to say where she stands on the issue.

The White House said last month that the State Department continued to review TransCanada Corp.'s proposed Keystone XL pipeline from Canada's oil sands to Gulf Coast refineries. REUTERS

US Senate

Democrats block defense spending bill

Democrats blocked the fiscal 2016 defense spending bill in the U.S. Senate on Tuesday, amid a fierce fight with Republicans over tax and spending policy days before a potential Oct. 1 government shutdown.

The vote was 54-42, largely along party lines, with Republicans voting yes and Democrats no. It meant the appropriations measure failed to achieve the 60-vote majority needed to advance to final passage in the 100-member Senate.

Congressional Democrats and Republicans are fighting over a range of tax and spending issues as the end of the fiscal year approaches.

In the case of the Department of Defense, Democrats oppose a Republican-led plan to use some $38 billion in special war contingency funds to let the Pentagon sidestep mandatory "sequestration" spending cuts put in place under the 2011 Budget Control Act.

A similar vote on the appropriations bill in June also failed.

The two parties also have been arguing over Republican-led efforts to include a measure to defund the women's health care provider Planned Parenthood in any temporary funding bill to keep the government open. REUTERS

Pope Francis arrives for his first visit to the United States

Flight from Cuba. An Alitalia plane carrying Pope Francis touched down at Joint Base Andrews.

Pope Francis arrived on his first visit to the United States on Tuesday, bringing to Washington a message that its power and wealth should be made to serve humanity, and not the other way around.

Schoolchildren who gathered on the tarmac to welcome Francis cheered as the plane descended. "We love Francis, yes we do. We love Francis, how about you?" they chanted.

In a sign of the importance that the White House gives to the visit, President Barack Obama took the unusual step of traveling to the air base with his family to welcome Francis.

The two men will meet again on Wednesday at the White House, after which the 78-year-old pope will parade past Washington's major monuments before a crowd expected to reach tens of thousands.

The pontiff has electrified liberal-leaning U.S. Catholics with his shift in emphasis toward forgiveness and concern for the poor. He has dismayed some conservative followers with comments of concern over climate change and a pivot away from messages focused on the church's ban on birth control and opposition to abortion and same-sex marriage.

Francis was also expected to talk about immigration during his six-day visit, a top issue for him since his first days as pope in 2013.

He will make the first address by any pope to the U.S. Congress on Thursday, a speech to the U.N. General Assembly in New York on Friday and an open-air Mass in Philadelphia where 1.5 million people are expected to attend.

Francis spent four days in Cuba, where he urged a continued reconciliation between the Communist-run island and its superpower neighbor, building on a new detente he helped to broker earlier this year. REUTERS

Prostate Health Assessment Event

The Sidney Kimmel Cancer Center at Thomas Jefferson University and the Foundation for Breast & Prostate Health are offering free prostate screenings as part of a research program. Prostate cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death among men. Screening is important because prostate cancer shows no symptoms in its earliest stages.

Many organizations recommend prostate health assessment as part of men's healthcare.

Free screenings, including a blood test for prostate specific antigen (PSA), testosterone and cholesterol and a digital rectal exam, will take place at the following two locations:

- Wednesday, September 30, 2015, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the Sidney Kimmel Cancer Center – Bodine Building, 111 South 11th Street, Center City
- Friday, October 16, 2015, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at Jefferson at the Navy Yard – 3 Crescent Drive, Suite 100, South Philadelphia

Registration is required. To register for your free screenings, or for more information, call 1-800-JEFF-NOW.

French court upholds ban on Uber's service using drivers who aren't professionals

France's Constitutional Court upheld a national law that banned one of Uber Technologies' car services that relies on nonprofessional drivers using their own vehicles, dealing another setback to the company in Europe.

Uber had challenged the legality of a law passed by the French government, which banned its so-called UberPOP service and updated rules on how taxi companies could compete.

"The Constitutional Court rejects all the arguments raised by the company and declares the contested parts of the law as conforming with the Constitution," the court said. REUTERS

Volkswagen says 11M cars hit by scandal, probes multiply

Volkswagen CEO Martin Winterkorn / GETTY IMAGES

Questionable. Volkswagen was challenged as far back as 2014 over emissions test.

Volkswagen said a scandal over falsified U.S. vehicle emission tests could affect 11 million of its cars worldwide as investigations of its diesel models multiplied, heaping fresh pressure on CEO Martin Winterkorn.

Volkswagen has brought forward a meeting of senior supervisory board members to Tuesday evening from Wednesday, with Winterkorn's future on the line, a German newspaper reported, citing board sources.

The report in the Hannoversche Allgemeine Zeitung followed an earlier story in the Tagesspiegel newspaper saying the board would replace 68-year-old Winterkorn with Matthias Mueller, the head of the automaker's Porsche sports car business.

A Volkswagen spokesman denied the Tagesspiegel report. Winterkorn did not mention his future in a video message posted on the company's website in which he repeated his apology for the scandal.

But a key Winterkorn ally withheld public support for the chief executive.

"I don't want to preempt the upcoming intense deliberations and will not comment on details or any consequences," Stephan Weil, head of the German state of Lower Saxony, told reporters in Hanover when asked about Winterkorn's future.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency said on Friday that Volkswagen could face penalties of up to $18 billion for cheating emissions tests. The carmaker also faces lawsuits and damage to its reputation that could hit sales, and media reports have said the U.S. Department of Justice has opened a criminal inquiry into the matter. REUTERS

Volkswagen said it would set aside $7.3 billion in its third-quarter accounts to help cover the costs of the scandal, blowing a hole in analysts' profit forecasts.

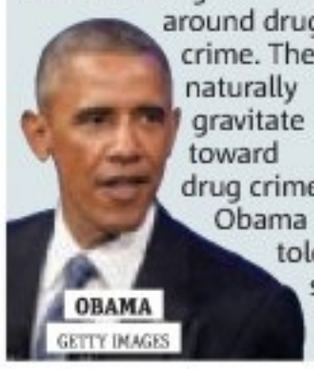
Five things you need to know

1 Obama, in prison documentary: US legal system has been 'unjust'

The United States has too long ignored the effect of high incarceration rates on minority and poor communities, President Barack Obama said in a TV documentary featuring an unprecedented presidential visit to a prison.

"As a society we seem to be OK with certain communities being locked in this cycle where kids are being raised around drug crime. They naturally gravitate toward drug crime," Obama told six inmates in July at the prison in the documentary, which is scheduled to air on Sunday.



"They then get involved in the criminal justice system, and it just churns, and everybody thinks that's normal," the president told the nonviolent drug offenders at the medium-security El Reno federal prison in Oklahoma. His visit is part of HBO's "Vice" documentary program.

Obama has made criminal justice reform a top priority of his final years in office and beyond.

More than 1.5 million Americans were in state or federal prisons at the end of 2013, according to the Bureau of Justice Statistics. African-Americans comprised about a third of the prisoners at the time despite being just 15 percent of the U.S. population. REUTERS

2 Senate to sidestep abortion fight in funding bill

Republican leaders in the U.S. Senate, hoping to avert an Oct. 1 government shutdown when federal funding runs out at the end of the current fiscal year, are likely to advance a stop-gap spending bill that abandons attempts to halt funding for Planned Parenthood, Senator John Cornyn said on Tuesday.

"Given the president's opposition and Democrats' opposition, at some point I anticipate there will be a clean CR," Cornyn, the second-ranking Republican, told reporters, referring to the temporary government funding bill known as a "continuing resolution." REUTERS

3 Americans overpaying for cancer drugs

Americans are paying way over the odds for some modern cancer drugs, with pharmaceutical companies charging up to 600 times what the medicines cost to make, according to an independent academic study.

The United States also pays more than double the price charged in Europe for these drugs, so-called tyrosine kinase inhibitors, a potent class of cancer pills with fewer side effects than chemotherapy.

The analysis by pharmacologist Andrew Hill of Britain's University of Liverpool is likely to fuel a growing storm over U.S. drug costs. REUTERS

4 South Dakota fire with six dead likely murder-suicide

Authorities believe a man shot his wife and four children to death, set fire to their house in South Dakota and then killed himself, the state attorney general's office said on Tuesday.

All six family members were found dead on Thursday after a fire destroyed their house near Platte, a small city about 110 miles west of Sioux Falls.

State and county investigators believe Scott Westerhuis died by a self-inflicted shotgun wound, the state attorney general's office said in a statement. There are no other suspects, a spokeswoman for the office said. REUTERS

5 Microsoft begins release of Office 2016

Microsoft said it began the worldwide rollout of Office 2016, the latest addition to its cloud-based subscription service Office 365, on Tuesday.

Office 2016 brings new versions of desktop apps for Windows including Word, PowerPoint, Excel, Outlook and Access and allows people to collaborate.

"These latest innovations take another big step forward in transforming Office from a familiar set of individual productivity apps to a connected set of apps and services designed for modern working, collaboration and teamwork," Chief Executive Satya Nadella said in a statement. REUTERS

Doctor's Memory Breakthrough

New Discovery for People with Failing Memory

World's Leading Brain Expert and Winner of the Prestigious Kennedy Award, Unveils Exciting News For the Scattered, Unfocused and Forgetful

Dr. Meir Shinitzky, Ph.D. a former visiting professor at Duke University and a recipient of the prestigious J.F. Kennedy Prize

By Steven Wuzubia
Health Correspondent;

Clearwater, Florida: Dr. Meir Shinitzky, Ph.D., is a former visiting professor at Duke University, recipient of the prestigious J.F. Kennedy Prize and author of more than 200 international scientific papers on human body cells. But now he's come up with what the medical world considers his greatest accomplishment — A vital compound. so powerful, it's reported to repair… even regrow damaged brain cells. In layman's terms — Bring back your memory power. And leave you feeling more focused and clear-headed than you have in years!

Dr. Shinitsky explains this phenomenon in simple terms; "Science has shown when your brain nutrient levels drop, you can start to experience memory problems and overall mental fatigue. Your ability to concentrate and stay focused becomes compromised. And gradually, a "mental fog" sets in. It can damage every aspect of your life". Not only do brain cells die but they become dysfunctional as if they begin to fade away as we age. This affects our ability to have mental clarity and focus and impacts our ability to remember things that were easy for us to do in our 20's and 30's.

Scientists think the biggest cause of brain deterioration in older people is the decreased functioning of membranes and molecules that surround the brain cells. These really are the transmitters that connect the tissues or the brain cells to one another that help us with our sharp memory, clear thinking and mental focus, even our powers to reason well. "When we are in our 20's" according to Dr. Shinitzky "our body produces key substances like phosphatidylserine and phosphatidic acid"…unfortunately they are believed to be critical essential nutrients that just fade away with age, much like our memories often do leading to further mental deterioration.

As we get older it becomes more frustrating as there is little comfort when you forget names… misplace your keys…or just feel "a little confused". And even though your foggy memory gets laughed off as just another "senior moment," it's not very funny when it keeps happening to you.

The Missing Link is Found and Tested

It's hard to pronounce that's for sure, but it certainly appears from the astounding clinical research that this one vital nutrient phosphatidylserine (PS) can really make a huge difference in our mental wellness. 17 different double blind studies with placebo controlled groups have been involved in the clinical research of PS with patients between the ages of 55-80 years of age. Periodically the researchers gave these patients memory and cognitive tests and the results were simply amazing:

1) PS patients outperformed placebo patients in All 5 Tests - 100% Success Rate
2) After only 45 days there was a measurable improvement in mental function
3) After 90 days, there was an impressive and amazing improvement in mental function

The group taking phosphatidylserine, not only enjoyed sharper memory, but listen to this… they were also more upbeat and remarkably more happy. In contrast, the moods of the individuals who took the placebo (starch pill), remained unaffected….no mental or mood improvement at all.

My Memory Started to Scare Me.

I would forget all kinds of things and something that I just said earlier in the day would have completely slipped my mind. I almost forgot my granddaughter's birthday and that would have been horrible. I had forgotten lots of other little things along the way. I was worried about it.

Over the last several months I've noticed my memory seemed to be getting pretty unreliable and so I thought I'd better do something about it now. So when I read about this amazing PS nutrient and how much it would help me with my memory I wanted to try it.

It's great! I have actual recall now, which is super. After about 6 weeks of taking it on a daily basis is when I began to notice that I wasn't forgetting things anymore.

Thanks to PS for giving me my memory back. It's given me a lot more self-confidence and self-esteem. I would not trust my memory without it.

- Ethel Macagnoney

Vital Nutrient Reverses "Scatter Brain"

This incredible PS nutrient feeds your brain the vital nutrient it needs to stay healthy... PS now has the attention of some of the world's most prominent brain experts. It has been written up and published in leading science and medical journals and its findings have electrified the International scientific community.

Earth-Shaking Science

Published, clinical reports show replenishing your body's natural supply of Phosphatidylserine, not only helps sharpen your memory and concentration — but also helps "perk you up" and put you in a better mood. PS as it turns out also helps to reduce everyday stress and elevate your mood by lowering your body's production of the hormone cortisol. When cortisol levels are too high for too long you experience fatigue, bad moods and weakness. This drug-free brain-boosting formula enters your bloodstream fast (in as little as thirty minutes).

Officially Reviewed by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration: Lipogen PS Plus is the ONLY Health Supplement that has a "Qualified Health Claim for both Cognitive Dysfunction and Dementia".

Special Opportunity For Our Readers

We've made arrangements with the distributor of this proprietary blend of PS, which combines with several other proven special brain boosting natural ingredients to give you the mental clarity and memory gain that you need, to give you a Risk-Free trial supply. This is a special "Readers Only Discount". This trial is 100% risk-free.

It's a terrific deal. If Lipogen PS Plus doesn't help you think better, remember more... and improve your mind, clarity and mood — you won't pay a penny! (Except S&H).

But you must act fast. Your order can only be guaranteed if it comes in within the next 7-days. After that, supplies could run out. And your order may not be fulfilled until they are replenished.

So don't wait. Now you can join the thousands of people who think better, remember more — and enjoy clear, "fog-free" memory. Call today, toll-free at 1-800-720-9113. Think of it as making a "wake-up call" to your brain.

Hacks. Apple plans steps to prevent future App Store attacks

Apple removed the malicious versions of the apps from the App store and those developers replaced them with clean updates. / GETTY IMAGES

A senior Apple executive on Tuesday said the company would make it easier for Chinese app developers to download its tools for building mobile apps in a bid to prevent further attacks on its App Store.

In the wake of the first major breach on its outlet for distributing iPhone and iPad software, Apple marketing chief Phil Schiller told Chinese news site Sina.com that it will offer domestic downloads within China of its software for developing apps.

He made the comment after Apple on Sunday confirmed that the App Store had suffered its first large-scale breach. Unknown hackers infected legitimate programs by persuading app developers to download a tainted copy of the toolkit. It was the first time a company executive has talked about efforts to secure the App Store since the attack surfaced late last week.

Chinese app developers have told Reuters they resorted to downloading the tainted software kit for developers from unofficial, third-party sources because of slow speeds downloading from Apple's official servers located overseas. Many complained the U.S. tech giant should do more to support developers in the company's second-biggest market.

The company announced that it was moving to clean up its App Store on Sunday, after several cybersecurity firms reported finding a malicious program dubbed XcodeGhost that was embedded in hundreds, possibly thousands, of legitimate apps.

It is the first reported case of large numbers of malicious software programs making their way past Apple's stringent app review process. Prior to this attack, a total of just five malicious apps had ever been found in the App Store, according to cybersecurity firm Palo Alto Networks Inc.

Schiller also said that Apple plans to list 25 tainted apps that the company has identified so that customers can delete and update them, according to the Chinese-language site.

How to score a Disney cruise discount

For the best deal, plan at least a year in advance. / GETTY IMAGES

Family finances. Disney cruises can be expensive, but you don't have to choose between sailing with Mickey or sending your children to college someday.

During peak summer and winter holiday seasons, Disney's least expensive inside staterooms can cost more than $1,000 per night for a family of four. But at other times, even desirable cabins with verandas can be booked for less than half that amount. A $6,000 fare paid for a seven-night Caribbean cruise in late August doesn't feel like a steal. But the same itinerary costs twice as much for a Dec. 19 sailing.

Fares for the holiday cruise range from $9,700 for an inside stateroom to $31,000 for a one-bedroom concierge suite.

To get a good deal on Disney Cruise Line, it helps to understand the Walt Disney Co. unit's unique position in the marketplace that keeps prices high, says Carolyn Spencer Brown, editor-in-chief of Cruise Critic, a review and travel information site.

How Disney compares to other cruise lines

Disney is a much smaller player than market-dominating cruise companies such as Carnival Corp. or Royal Caribbean Cruises Ltd. and has added capacity slowly to avoid the fire sales other lines use to move unsold cabins, Brown says.

"Disney is very conservative, very careful," Brown says. That means the usual bargain-hunting strategy of booking at the last minute often will not work. In fact, fares typically rise over time as the ships fill, said Adrienne Vincent-Phoenix, CEO of vacation resource site MousePlanet and a veteran of 20 Disney cruises.

Rather than discounting fares for poorly selling cruises, Disney tends to offer "kids sail free" promotions or other add-ons, she says. Savvy buyers are already snapping up the least expensive and most desirable cabins for next summer, Brown says. For high-season travel, "you need to plan at least a year in advance."

The best time to take a Disney cruise

Bargain hunters should consider traveling during the school year, when most families cannot. They should also seek out longer trips, especially cruises across the Atlantic or through the Panama Canal, which the company uses to reposition its ships. A 14-night transatlantic cruise that sails May 15 from Port Canaveral, Florida, currently can be booked for as little as $1,890 per person, or $270 a night for a couple.

Note that it is now industry standard to add gratuities directly to the bill, and Disney charges $12 per person per day to cover room stewards (called hosts and hostesses) and dining room servers. That adds up to $336 for a party of four.

Vincent-Phoenix also suggested looking for cruises out of less popular ports such as Galveston, Texas, or Miami.

Extras and add-ons

While Disney ships do not have casinos, they do have spas with costly treatments and therapists who push expensive products. Disney-sponsored excursions, souvenirs and professional photography packages can inflate the bill, as can adults-only restaurants, which charge additional amounts ranging from $35 to $85 per person.

In some cases, the add-ons are worth it: Amazing meals at the restaurants on ship and a weeklong pass to the spa can be a good investment at $100 each.

On the other hand, many of the excursions are overpriced. You can book a good all-day snorkel trip at St. Martin via TripAdvisor.com for much less than Disney charges. Do your research first.

At Castaway Cay, Disney's private island in the Bahamas, excursions are quite unnecessary. There is plenty to do for free.

1 January Jones and Will Forte split up, were apparently dating

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

"Last Man on Earth" stars Will Forte and January Jones have reportedly broken up after five months of dating, according to Us Weekly. Wait, they were dating? And while they were both at the Emmys Sunday night — with Forte making a hilarious cameo in Andy Samberg's opening number — the split apparently happened last month. Sources say there were no awkward run-ins at the ceremony or afterparties, so there's that, at least.

As for why they couldn't make it work, it's less to do with bridging the comedy and drama divide, apparently. A source spills that single mom Jones has been telling friends, "Relationships are a pain in the ass." Sure, but Forte seems so chill. As a side note, isn't it superawkward when you find out two people are dating by hearing about their breakup?

3 Eva Mendes sticks up for maternity style

Guys, be nice.

Hey, online snarksters, maybe lay off the pregnant ladies? That's what Eva Mendes is asking, and honestly it's embarrassing she has to say it, but such is today's world. "I don't think it's fair to comment on [pregnant] women. I think that's when we should be off-limits," she tells Elle.com. "I was basically in an oversized T-shirt — a very oversized T-shirt — for a long time. I didn't do anything stylewise." Not that there's anything wrong with that.

4 Snoop Dogg launches stoner network

You may find this hard to believe, but ...

Snoop Dogg's love for weed is no secret, and the rapper is channeling that passion into the launch of Merry Jane — a tech platform that centers on cannabis — which he announced this week at TechCrunch Disrupt in San Francisco. After investing in tech products and platforms in the last year with a focus on the marijuana industry, Snoop Dogg launched the site with a limited amount of beta tester invites, according to TechCrunch. "There are so many people in the closet, and we are giving them an opportunity to come out of the closet and just admit they like to smoke," the rapper says. "I'm a smoker, my name is Snoop Dogg and I'm a stoner." Shocker. CRISTABELLE TUMOLA

Poor Robert Pattinson. The former "Twilight" star admits that as he inches toward 30, he's finding it trickier to stay in shape — and harder to hide that fact from prying eyes. "It used to be that I could start working out four weeks before a job and it would be totally fine. Now? Nothing happens," he laments to the Times. "What the f— is going on? I had to go on holiday to an extravagant secret location this year because I was afraid of someone photographing my gut."

FEELING BLOATED

Man, right there with ya. Except for the going-on-vacation part. Other than that, totes simpatico. Also, Pattinson wants it to be known that there is at least one good part about global stardom: "I'm so glad about the vanity required in this job, because if I didn't have to stay in shape I'd be such a fat-ass," he admits.

Cookie is (finally) back in your life

Interview. Taraji P. Henson says her "Empire" character is ready to start storming into rooms again.

"Empire" premieres tonight at 9 p.m. on Fox. / CHUCK HODES, FOX

To say that "Empire" took the TV world by storm last winter would be an understatement. The musical soap opera quickly became one of the most popular shows on television, with fans everywhere obsessing over the next moves of each member of the duplicitous Lyon clan. But a large part of that interest was inspired by Taraji P. Henson's overpowering performance as matriarch Cookie Lyon, who at the beginning of the show had recently been released from prison and was on the warpath to get the family company back in her name.

Cookie is behind a lot of the shifting loyalties of the family's drama, expertly playing each of her sons off of each other and conspiring against her ex Lucious (Terrence Howard), all while dressed to the nines and striding into each room as if she owns the place. When asked if Cookie will be making her trademark big entrances this year, Henson laughs and says, "That's what she does!"

It's a big part of the character, and Henson admits, "When they first started that, I was like, look, we can't have Cookie busting in every room all the time. But the way they write it is so clever, because that's how she is. That's what she would do."

Fans will see much of the same Cookie they fell in love with in Season 1, as Henson promises "not many changes" to her. Instead, the show will be "delving more into the 17 years she was locked away from her family. That says a lot about her."

And like any TV fan, Henson went to a popular source to learn about prison life. "I've been binge-watching 'Orange Is the New Black.' I'm almost done with the second season. It just made me think, that's an important part of her life. We need to know, how did it change her? How did she go in? What did it do to her coming out?"

But that drama may have to share time in her life with her fight with middle son Jamal (Jussie Smollett). While the two started out as the closest pair in the family, by the end of the season, they were completely at odds. And Henson says that's not likely to change, despite how popular the two are: "That's going to kill you. I will say this. You're not going to like that part."

Cookie finds herself in enemy territory in Season 2, as she's recently formed an alliance with Lucious' other ex, Boo Boo Kitty — or Anika, to give her her real name instead of Cookie's hilariously derogatory moniker. Asked whether the two will set aside their differences, Henson just laughs knowingly and says, "You'll have to watch."

Plot twist

Singing talent

Though Cookie did some singing in the first season, Henson says she's not sure if she'll be doing any in Season 2. "I requested it, and I thought maybe it would be interesting. Because you know women, we're always taking the back burner for our men. Even though we might be the most talented, but to make them feel like a man, we'll take the backseat. So I was like, wouldn't it be interesting — because Cookie is so family-first — if not only did she go to jail for her family, and not rat [Lucious] out, but what if she was the talent when they were younger, and she just decided to say, 'You know what, I'll fall back and let him be the talent.'"

Return of the mother

Interview. "Goldbergs" star Wendi McLendon-Covey says she admires her character's devotion to family.

Catch "The Goldbergs" tonight at 8:30 on ABC. / GETTY IMAGES

Beverly Goldberg is not a mother who does things halfway. As the matriarch at the center of "The Goldbergs," the 1980s-set sitcom about the titular family, she seems to firmly believe there is no quantity of love and affection that might be too much for her kids. And Wendi McLendon-Covey, who plays her, says she understands the dynamic of the family.

"My dad was pantsless, most of the time. My mom really was the one raising us, so this spoke to me. And where [the show was] getting the criticism, 'Oh, they yell too much,' I'm thinking, they don't yell enough! Followed by long awkward silences and door slamming. You can always throw more of that in, if you want to be realistic," jokes McLendon-Covey.

Despite all the yelling, it's always clear that the family members have a deep affection for each other, and McLendon-Covey appreciates that Beverly is unapologetic about the degree of her devotion.

"What I love about her is she loves her family. She does not apologize for loving her family. She takes her job as a mom very seriously," she explains, adding that fans often say they wish she was their mom. "I guess at the bottom of it, as embarrassing as you are as a parent, kids like knowing that you've got [their] back."

And there can never be any doubt about the degree to which Beverly looks out for her kids. "You know Beverly will kick anybody's ass. She'll say it, and she'll threaten it, and she'll follow through," says McLendon-Covey.

Of course, because the show is set in the '80s, that means some unusual costumes for the cast.

"The worst outfit would be my aerobic wear. I did have to be in a leotard, and I'd rather not do that again. The second worst would be my Thanksgiving outfit. Twice I've worn it. I think it's made of vinyl, and it comes off on my skin," says McLendon-Covey.

Some of those outfits came right from the source — show creator Adam Goldberg has borrowed clothes from his mother that McLendon-Covey has then worn on the show.

"The great thing is she wants all this stuff back when the show ends. I don't know what she's going to do with it," says McLendon-Covey with a laugh.

Despite the goofiness of the setting, McLendon-Covey thinks it's the emotion that makes the show a success. "Forget all the '80s references," she says." They're there because that's when Adam grew up. Take away the Rubik's Cubes and whatever, and there's a heart there. I've cried my way through many table reads and will continue to do so."

Favorites

New classics

The show's been on long enough that McLendon-Covey has a few favorite episodes. "I did a vow renewal, and that really gave me the feels," she admits. "Another good episode was when I barged into my son's dance and watched him have his first slow dance and it shredded me. Or shredded Beverly. Not me, I held it together.

"But imagine watching your baby fall in love and you're not the main lady anymore!"

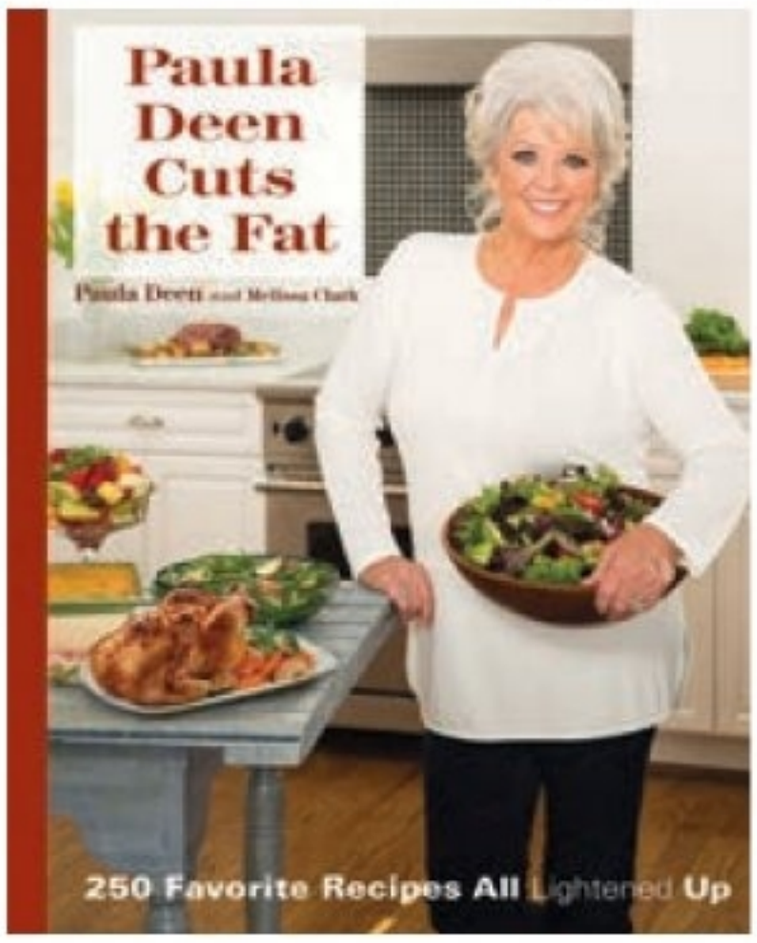
The butter queen lightens up

Chef. Paula Deen promises Southern food doesn't have to be heavy.



Paula Deen is back in the public eye and doing her best to stay light on her feet. We talked to the "Dancing With the Stars" contestant/celebrity chef before she comes to town for the Taste Philadelphia Festival about a simple, healthy ingredient swap from her new cookbook, "Paula Deen Cuts the Fat: 250 Recipes All Lightened Up" — and her "DWTS" secret weapon.

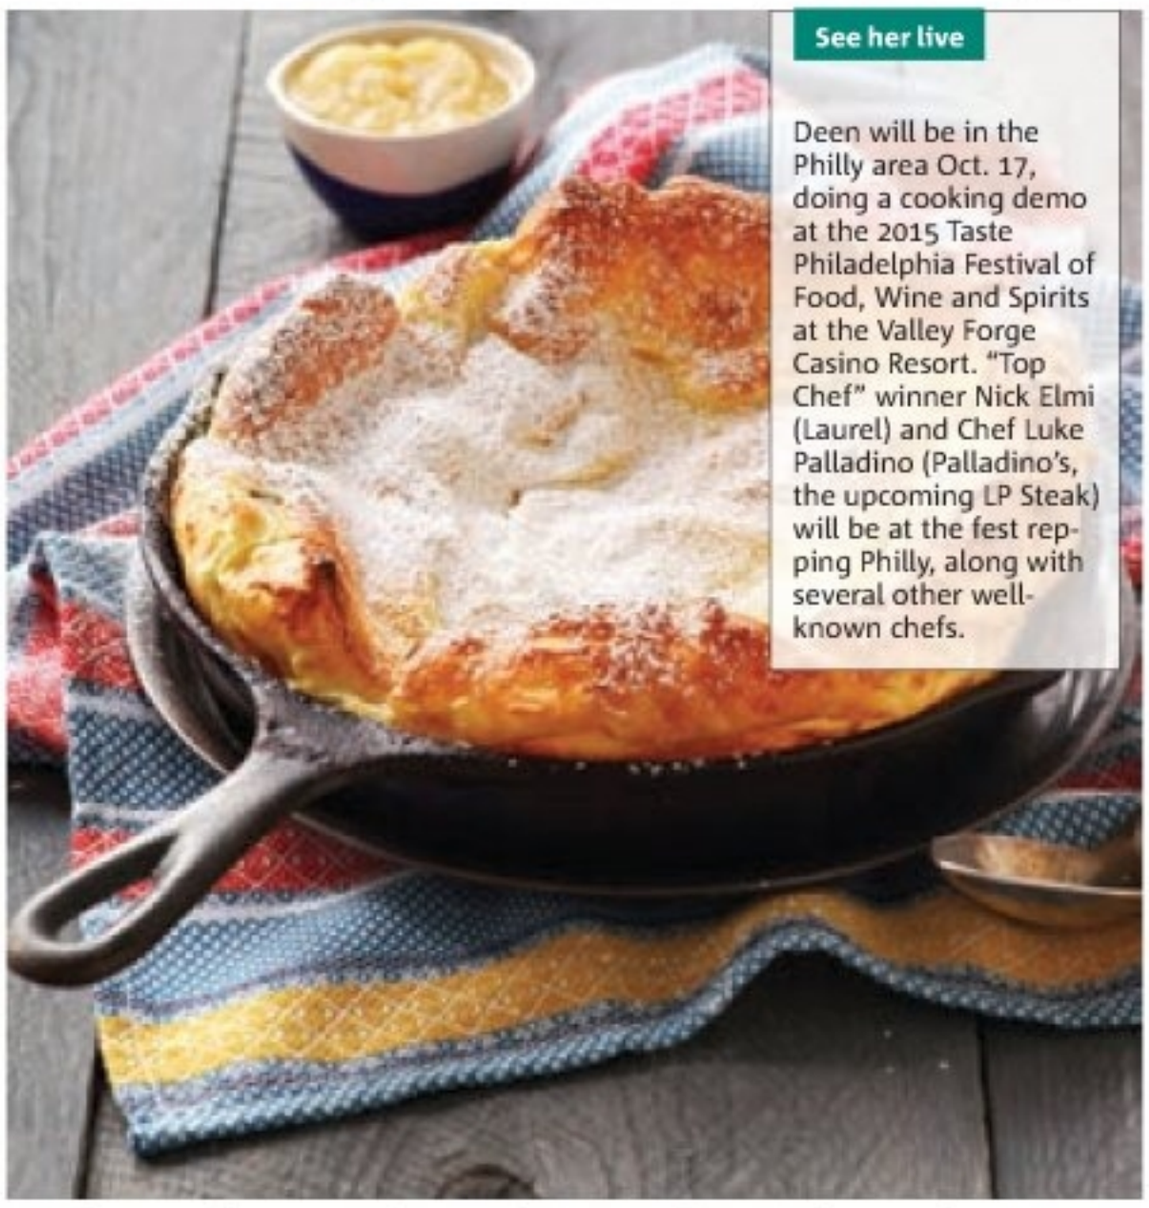
We don't usually think of Southern cooking as being light. Can you really keep all the flavor while cutting calories?
You definitely can. Once people can get past the fried chicken, we eat so many vegetables in the South!

Do you believe in "cheat days," where you can eat whatever you want?
Absolutely! Everyone deserves one cheat day a week.

Is there an ingredient swap that you use in a lot of your recipes, to lighten them up from traditional Southern dishes?
In some of my "Lightened Up" recipes, I substitute Greek yogurt for sour cream. My son Bobby introduced this to me and I certainly now realize the value.

"Dancing With the Stars" sounds so daunting. What made you want to join the show?
My family, friends and team members. They have been asking me for years and I felt that now is the time to conquer the dance floor.

Who is the toughest competition on the show?
I'm truly staying focused on myself — my brain is my biggest competition. [But] I plan on cooking all of my competitors cake and pies before each show so that I can fatten them up. I want to make them move a little slower!



See her live

Deen will be in the Philly area Oct. 17, doing a cooking demo at the 2015 Taste Philadelphia Festival of Food, Wine and Spirits at the Valley Forge Casino Resort. "Top Chef" winner Nick Elmi (Laurel) and Chef Luke Palladino (Palladino's, the upcoming LP Steak) will be at the fest repping Philly, along with several other well-known chefs.

Make Paula Deen's Dutch Pancake with Applesauce

Ingredients:
- 3 large eggs, lightly beaten
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
- Pinch of salt
- 3 tablespoons unsalted butter
- Confectioners' sugar, for sprinkling
- Home Ginger Applesauce (from "Paula Deen Cuts the Fat") or store bought

Directions:

1 Preheat oven to 425° F.

2 In a medium bowl, combine the eggs, milk, flour, nutmeg and salt. Whisk lightly, leaving the batter a little lumpy.

3 In a 10-inch ovenproof skillet, melt the butter. When the pan is hot and the butter is fully melted, pour in the batter. Bake for 15 minutes, until the pancake is golden brown.

4 Remove the pancake from the oven and quickly sprinkle lightly with confectioners' sugar. Return to the oven for 2 minutes. Serve warm with applesauce and more confectioners' sugar, if you like.

Alison Brie likes it dark

Interview. The "Sleeping with Other People" star made an edgy rom-com. But she still likes normal rom-coms.

Alison Brie and Jason Sudeikis play friends who may be more than that — or not! — in "Sleeping with Other People," in area theaters Friday. / IFC FILMS

Alison Brie laughs a lot when she talks, though she only does that half the time in "Sleeping with Other People." She plays Lainey, who has a love addiction for a man she shouldn't (played by Adam Scott). The only person who makes her perk up is Jake (Jason Sudeikis), with whom she should obviously pair off. Instead they remain (for now) friends. It's a classic romantic-comedy setup, only one tempered by dark themes and brutal honesty. But that's how she likes it.

You voice Diane on "BoJack Horseman," which is a very, very dark show. "Sleeping with Other People" can get pretty dark too. Are you actively looking for that tone in projects?
Absolutely. I love that kind of stuff. It's what I like to watch as well. When things become a bit darker or unexpectedly dark, it really turns me on.

There's a will-they-or-won't-they thing going on here, but their relationship is so deep that it almost doesn't matter if they get together or not.
It could go either way. Leslye [Headland, writer-director] wrote a romantic comedy for cynics. It toes the line between being cynical and very romantic. The whole time you're watching it you're like, "Yeah, f— love." [Laughs] At the same time you're watching them fall in love. I like that, as the title suggests, we're watching these characters fall in love but we also see them sleeping with other people, having sex with other people. It feels very current. It feels like the way people do date and have complex and confusing relationships with people at the same time they're sexually active. Romantic comedies became very chaste for a while, and weirdly so. The characters are focused on falling in love, then eventually they do. I don't think that's how people date today.

Sometimes I think we're a little hard on rom-coms. What's your take on them?
I love them. I love them. I'll kind of watch all of them. I don't love all of them, but I love it as a genre. It took me a while. I agree: Everyone's a little snobbish about them. I used to be as well. Then I realized I watch them more than any other movies. If they're on cable and I'm flipping through channels, I'm always going to watch "Hitch" if it's on. They're feel-good movies.

One more thing

Remembering Wes Craven

The filmmaker Wes Craven passed away recently. You had a small role in "Scream 4." What are your memories of him?
He was one of the loveliest people I've ever worked with. And so funny. I was obsessed with the "Scream" trilogy when I was younger, so much that I made a parody with friends in high school. It was called "Yell." We had a guy in a suit and a mask and he would walk instead of run. It was really fun.

Aries This is a perfect time for romance. Time spent will strengthen your relationship. If you're unattached, make a point of socializing.

Taurus Try to be more accepting. Not everyone will agree with your way of doing things, but that doesn't make them your enemy.

Gemini Despite a rocky start, you will be able to get through most of your to-do list. An emotional friend will need help sorting out a personal problem.

Cancer Things are on the move and a change in location is possible. Consider all the pros and cons you face. Put your finances in place.

Leo A lighthearted diversion will help you forget everyday worries. Get together with friends and colleagues for a physical or mental competition.

Virgo Negative types will sour your mood and lower your confidence. Align yourself with people who support your efforts.

Libra If you host a get-together, all eyes will be on you. Make the most of a social situation by mixing business and pleasure.

Scorpio Let bygones be bygones. The more you relive the past, the harder it will be to move on. Consider what lifestyle changes you can make.

Sagittarius You have a lot to achieve and you will be inclined to overdo it. Leave yourself time at the end of the day for some rest.

Capricorn You will be surprised at the reaction you get when you are sincere about your needs. For the assistance you seek, you just have to ask.

Aquarius Consider forming a partnership, but don't stretch the truth. Overstating your qualifications will cost you your reputation.

Pisces You have an admirer. Your charm and wit will not go unnoticed, but don't lead anyone on. Offer to help out an elderly relative. EUGENIA LAST

Love where you live

To DIY or not to -?

Unless you count electrical engineering as a hobby, sometimes you simply have to hire a professional. But for those minor renovations and moderate repairs? The Ugly Duckling House blog is a testament to how much you can do yourself if you aren't afraid to get your hands dirty. "The biggest benefit, at least for me, is the pride of knowing that I can," says Fogle. "Even after five years of DIY, I still run into lots of challenges that I've never seen before. My first reaction is almost always to get intimidated and put it off. But with all of the other projects I've got under my belt, I know from experience that just because I haven't done it yet doesn't mean I can't."

Now is the time to make sure your nest is nice and cozy for the winter. Here's what to do before the mercury drops.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

When the temperature begins to dip, it's easy to remember what you need for fall: boots, cable-knit sweaters, pumpkin-flavored everything and more boots. A less exciting — but just as important — list has essentials your house needs for fall.

If you want a happy home over the winter and through the spring, it pays to spend a little time working on your humble abode now.

New to the homeowner game — or, ahem, late to the home-maintenance game? We checked in with Sarah Fogle, the DIYer, remodeler and power-tool enthusiast behind The Ugly Duckling House blog, for her top three fall to-dos.

1 Pest control

You're not the only one who enjoys a nice warm place to hibernate. "I just hired a contractor to finish some exterior siding work, especially along the chimney, and a big part of that was long overdue for preventing critters — woodpeckers and squirrels in particular — from becoming unwelcome roommates," says Fogle. "I'm also replacing old screens on the wooden gables in the attic — again, to prevent a pesky squirrel from moving in this winter."

Prep your garden beds for winter now so they'll be weed-free come spring. ISTOCK

2 Insulating touch-ups

Remember last February's heating bill? That should be the only motivation you need to whip out the caulking gun. "This is one of those fix-it-as-you-go kind of things, but I almost always run into a new spot somewhere in the house that could use better insulation," says Fogle. "I've done a number of caulking projects in the past, but I'm probably going to add replacing the weather stripping to the to-do list this year."

3 Garden maintenance

Come April, your yard doesn't have to look like a morning-after mess. "Every spring, it's weed city, and a significant amount of that is preventable," says Fogle. "This fall, I'm preparing my new garden beds to stay weed-free this winter with free materials like cardboard and newspaper, which make spring planting even easier."

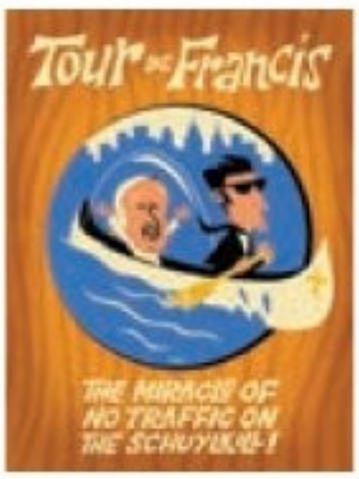
Other maintenance musts

1. Pay a visit to your roof. The time to make a repair is now, not when you have a snowdrift in your kitchen.
2. Clean those gutters. Because the last thing you want hanging out next to a pile of leaves is a pile of ice.
3. Service your heater. Make an appointment while the weather is still mild. Not only will you catch any problems before the mercury drops, but a clean and well-maintained heating system will improve the quality of your air, as well.
4. Inventory your yard equipment. Cleaning the lawn mower before stowing it away is a nice touch. But if nothing else, make sure your snow shovel is in fighting shape and your rock salt is at the ready.

Pope out your crib

Pope Francis is known to go off schedule during his visits. Worried the Holy See might knock on your door while he's in town this weekend? Make sure you're ready to welcome him by decorating with these papal items.

RACHEL VIGODA & MADELINE PRESLAND



Print

Put the pope on your wall with a print from Todd Kimmell of the Grand Review and Norway-based artist Fred Lammers. "The T-shirts and that sort of thing — they'll come and go. This will really bring a smile 10 or 20 years from now," says Kimmell.

$40 (additional prints available, from $20)
The Grand Review, Etsy.com

Plush doll

Get cozy with a papal plush doll, available at Open House. "One person bought five for her family," says Joelle Long, manager of the Midtown Village boutique. "We're trying to stay as stocked as possible." If they run out before you get there, go for the pope bobblehead instead, or the "solar pope" figurine that waves when put in the sun.

$22, Open House, 107 S. 13th St.

Toaster

Even if you can't get close enough to see the pope, he can still join you for breakfast. Toast the Pope comes with inserts that brand Pope Francis' face or the message "spread the love" onto your bread. (Liberty Bell and Ben Franklin inserts are also available for your year-round toasting enjoyment.)

$48.95, Toast the Pope, Toastthepope.com

Candle

Put the pumpkin spice Yankee jars on a back shelf and proudly display this Frankincense, myrrh, ginger and rosemary-scented candle with a label showing Pope Francis and the Philadelphia skyline. It's also available draped with a rosary made by jewelry artist Valerie Velvet.

$20; with rosary, $40
Jeri's Curio, 1726 E. Passyunk Ave.

Cheese

The newest artistic medium for a portrait of il Papa is fresh mozzarella. "I was looking at his picture over and over again," says artist Larry Buss of Medusa Pots on building a cheese mold in the pope's likeness. "He's a very grandfatherly figure and looks like a delightful character." Eat at your own karmic risk. $20; Pastificio, 1528 Packer Ave.

Phillies keeping Mac

Mackanin will return in 2016

The Phillies are pleased with Pete Mackanin's performance as manager since taking over for Ryne Sandberg this summer, and will extend his contract through the 2016 season. "We believe that Pete is the best fit for the role," Phillies president Andy MacPhail said.

Eagles' Hicks no stranger to being 'next man up'

NFL. The Eagles will likely be without both Kiko Alonso and Mychal Kendricks in New York against the Jets on Sunday.

The Eagles defense fought hard Sunday against Dallas, keeping the team in the game despite a futile effort offensively.

There were casualties in the battle (aside from Cowboys quarterback Tony Romo — who will miss at least eight weeks) as the Eagles practiced without Cedric Thornton, Kiko Alonso and Mychal Kendricks on Tuesday.

Alonso has a partial tear of his ACL, according to a league source.

"Kiko is still in the evaluation process," defensive coordinator Billy Davis said. "We're crossing our fingers and hoping everything turns out the best. We're unsure about him, but this week I don't expect him to play."

Kendricks has a hamstring injury and according to sources has an "outside shot" to play against the Jets on Sunday. So who does that leave to play inside linebacker?

DeMeco Ryans will be active, and he is healthy after missing half of last season with an ACL tear. Alongside him? Rookie Jordan Hicks — a talented player who has been under the radar but won't be for long.

"I think the encouraging thing is that Jordan Hicks came in played really well," Malcolm Jenkins said of the third-round pick from Texas. "He got thrown into the fire this weekend, in a tight defensive game with everything on the line and all of a sudden he's out there in a position to make calls, get lined up and make plays. And he did well. As a rookie, that's huge. We feel comfortable with him out there."

Quoted

"I know I am going to have a lot to learn, it takes a lot of film and studying, and talking to DeMeco and guys like Kiko and Mychal." Jordan Hicks

Jordan Hicks had seven tackles Sunday against Dallas. / GETTY IMAGES

Being "thrown into the fire" is nothing new for Hicks, who went through a similar situation back in Austin.

"My freshman year in college the exact same thing happened," Hicks said. "Huge game, going into it I wasn't sure if I was going to play, I was on special teams, and next thing you know you're in."

The Eagles added some depth by re-signing inside linebacker Najee Goode (cut by the team in training camp) who will add a little depth to the reeling inside linebacking corps.

NFL power rankings | by Luke Miller

No. 1

Patriots (2-0)

New England is on a warpath. A few fumbles let the Bills climb back into a game that was 37-13 at one point, but this is the second week in a row the Patriots have won a game that wasn't at all as close as the score indicated. The Pats face Jacksonville Sunday.

No. 2

Packers (2-0)

A Week 2 regular season game will never qualify as revenge for a conference title game, but the Packers got the most satisfaction they could in the win over Seattle. Aaron Rodgers keeps finding receivers and the Pack will still be at the top of this list until the day he isn't under center.

No. 3

Cardinals (2-0)

The end of last season made it easy to forget how good this team is when Carson Palmer is around and healthy. The Cards have faced two of the NFL's bottom-feeders so far, to be sure, but they've treated them as such. Larry Fitzgerald's renaissance Sunday was nice to behold.

No. 4

Broncos (2-0)

Denver rallied to stun the Chiefs last Thursday after a sluggish start recalled the offense's struggles against Baltimore. Everyone had an opinion on the end of the Peyton Manning era last week, but Peyton made his known by throwing for three touchdowns and nabbing a late comeback win.

No. 5

Cowboys (2-0)

One would be hard-pressed to find two more-costly back-to-back victories in NHL history as the Cowboys lost Tony Romo to injury just a week after losing Dez Bryant. Still, both are hopeful to return this season and Dallas has some breathing room in the lowly NFC East.

No. 6

Bengals (2-0)

Two weeks, two impressive victories for Cincy. Drubbing Oakland 30-13 looks even better in the wake of the Raiders' upset win over Baltimore, and San Diego is always a quality opponent. The Bengals are balanced on offense right now. Jeremy Hill just needs to get the fumbles under control.

No. 7

Seahawks (0-2)

Seattle could make a case last week that it outplayed St. Louis. That case isn't there this week. Not that anyone would consider questioning a decision made by Pete Carroll, but get Kam Chancellor back fast, Seahawks! The Cardinals are already two games up in the division.

No. 8

Steelers (1-1)

If this is the Pittsburgh offense without Le'Veon Bell and Martavis Bryant, look out. Those two will be back next week, and that should make opposing defenses very, very afraid. As for the defense, bend but don't break might sum it up best, unless Gronk is around.

No. 9

Chiefs (1-1)

The Chiefs have allowed comebacks in two straight weeks now. In Week 1 it didn't bite them, but this time it did. Jamaal Charles' astonishing second fumble of the night was returned for a touchdown with 27 seconds left and Kansas City lose to Denver for the seventh straight time.

Best of the rest

- 10. Bills (1-1): Buffalo gets some points for fighting back in the fourth after falling down 37-13.
- 11. Jets (2-0): This defense has to be salivating as they start watching Eagles tape.
- 12. Colts (0-2): We all knew Indy had to get past the Patriots entering this season. Now it seems their bugaboo is the entire AFC East.
- 13. Panthers (2-0): Cam Newton is going to have to do it all for Carolina.
- 14. Falcons (2-0): Perhaps we were wrong about the NFC South, as Dan Quinn has Atlanta looking like a playoff team.
- ...27. Eagles (0-2): The Eagles have an offense that can't move the ball and serious injury woes on defense.

NFL. Will Marshall be next WR to tear up Eagles' secondary?

Remember no Dez no problem? Well, Terrance Williams gave $63 million man Byron Maxwell some problems in Sunday's loss to Dallas in the absence of Dez Bryant.

This one week after Julio Jones lit the entire secondary to the tune of nine catches for 141 yards and two touchdowns.

Next on the docket? The Jets and Brandon Marshall, fresh off his 101 yards against the Colts on Monday night.

"He's a big physical receiver, he has the speed to streak the field, he catches the ball well, and catches it well across the middle," Eagles safety Malcolm Jenkins said. "He will take those slants and turn the five-yard catch into 15 yards, and more than that if you miss a tackle. He's just really consistent."

Consistent is a word that would not describe the Eagles' secondary of late — something the Jets and Marshall will surely try and exploit.

"You have to defend him the whole game," Jenkins said. "If you are not on him, if you're not in his face, if you don't disrupt his timing all day long he can change the game."

Eagles defensive coordinator Billy Davis is worried — perhaps as he should be.

"They do a great job of moving him around a little bit," Davis said. "He's a big run-after-catch guy, more than you think. He's such a big, strong guy. He muscles up and makes the catch, and then he's a tough tackle. He is absolutely the primary weapon in this offense in the passing game. They do a lot of empty sets and you've got to find him, and then kind of mix in the zone, the man and then the pressures."
